The performance video blends Hip Hop, movement, community connection, and the growing popularity of line dance culture.

LOS ANGELES, CA, 5/30/2026 — Los Angeles-based Hip Hop artist Dilly Gence is bringing music, movement, and community together with the release of his new performance video, “Line em' Up.” Built around feel-good Hip Hop and line dance energy, the video invites viewers to step in, loosen up, and join the groove.

The performance video blends rhythm, dance, and participation in a way that feels instantly welcoming. Rather than keeping the audience at a distance, “Line em' Up” creates an open invitation for longtime dancers, casual steppers, and anyone ready to catch the beat.

As line dancing continues to grow across generations and communities, Dilly Gence adds his own Hip Hop flavor to the movement. His creative lane is rooted in music that feels fun, accessible, and made for real people — the kind of song that can turn a room, a screen, or a community gathering into a shared moment.

“With ‘Line em' Up,’ I wanted to create something exciting that people could dance to and share with each other,” said Dilly Gence. “Dilly Gence is about showing how Hip Hop can feel fun, welcoming, and connected to real people.”

Dilly Gence’s broader creative background includes using Hip Hop, lyric writing, poetry, and performance as tools for youth expression and community connection. His work has included creative engagement with youth, underserved communities, and school communities throughout Los Angeles, including spaces connected to LAUSD programming, as well as volunteer work with at-risk youth in shelter-based settings.

That background helps shape the spirit behind “Line em' Up.” The song and video are about bringing people into the same rhythm, building energy, and creating a moment where people feel included, connected, and free to move.

For television, radio, digital, and community media outlets, the story offers a strong visual and interactive segment opportunity. Dilly Gence is available for interviews, in-studio appearances, virtual segments, clean performance clips, and line dance demonstrations. A segment could include a short conversation about Hip Hop, youth expression, creativity, and community, along with a simple “Line em' Up” dance moment for hosts and viewers.

Dilly Gence is a feel-good Hip Hop artist whose music blends humor, rhythm, confidence, and movement. Rooted in classic Hip Hop flavor with a playful, positive edge, his work celebrates joy, dance, community, and everyday wisdom that makes a room feel lighter.
